Letter from Randy Gooch, 2012 KPHA President

Dear Public Health Colleagues:

Welcome to the 65th Annual Conference of the Kentucky Public Health Association! I’m confident you will share in many wonderful educational sessions to develop your public health knowledge, while also finding opportunities to network with peers and become aware of the valuable products our exhibitors have to offer. We want your attendance to be a positive experience, so please don’t hesitate to contact our registration desk if you need assistance.

This year’s conference theme is “Promoting Health Equity for all Kentuckians.” Health Equity may be defined as all people having equal opportunity to attain their full health potential regardless of social position or other socially determined circumstance. Our Keynote speaker, Dr. Adewale Troutman, identifies himself through his commitment to social justice, human rights, community activism and health equity. Currently serving as President of the American Public Health Association, Dr. Troutman is no stranger to Kentucky as he previously served as the Director of the Louisville Metro Department of Public Health and Wellness. We are pleased to have him join us and know he will provide inspiration for all of us to consider health equity for all Kentuckians more seriously.

A conference of this magnitude doesn’t plan itself so I want to give special thanks for a job well done to our President-Elect, Brandon Hurley, and everyone who served as a Section Chair or Committee Chair as well as our Executive Director, Steve Bing, and our Office Manager, Jill LeMaster. Special thanks is also due to our Board of Directors, Sponsors, Speakers, Exhibitors, Donors as well as our KPHA Membership who are all integral parts of making this conference successful.

My personal thanks go to our entire KPHA Membership for allowing me the honor of serving as your President for the 2012-2013 year. I will continue to commit my service and support to the KPHA and make a plea to all of you to do the same. I believe we make positive impacts on the public health of Kentucky and will continue to do so as we grow in one voice with cause.

Again, thanks for your participation and may God’s richest blessings be upon you.

Sincerely,

Randy Gooch
Director, Jessamine County Health Department

Bridges Into Health: Strategies to Reduce Inequities and Improve Health Outcomes

This full-day workshop builds on the Bridges Out of Poverty concept, looking at the growing body of research on economic, class and social inequities as determinants for our health. Poor health is a huge portion of the cost of poverty in the United States, yet economic class in turn affects all aspects of health and health care. Through teaching, dialogue, videos, and meaningful learning tasks, Dreussi-Smith describes how social capital and social interactions can be redesigned to improve health outcomes. She provides research on how “poverty is making us sick” and introduces a dialogue on how Robert Sapolsky’s “Theory of Social Coherence” is limiting healthcare access within our communities.

Terri Dreussi-Smith builds on classroom and college teaching experience as well as nine years supervising Prevention Services at a community alcohol/drug treatment and prevention organization. She has been instrumental in the redesign of prevention and early intervention services that target impoverished clients.

As a consultant for program management and grant-writing, Dreussi-Smith assists communities to embed the Bridges Out of Poverty concept as they redesign services and programs. She presents nearly 100 seminars annually, and is experienced at helping communities to implement the public health model as they promote health, wellness, and sustainability. She is the coauthor of Bridges Out of Poverty: Strategies for Professionals and Communities.

HEALTH OUTCOMES
County Health Rankings 2012: Kentucky
www.countyhealthrankings.org/kentucky
Public health clinical services are invaluable for ensuring access to preventive care.
In 1997, Passport Health Plan made a promise to the Commonwealth to help Kentuckians lead healthier lives, manage the rising costs of Medicaid, and improve quality outcomes.

OTHERS BEFORE US HAVE TRIED.

Only Passport Health Plan promised, succeeded, and continues to deliver:

- A non-profit health plan that puts .91 cents of every $1.00 back into the care of the membership and the provider community.
- An estimated savings to Kentucky’s Medicaid program of $180 million between calendar years 2010-2011.

Passport Health Plan is the best Medicaid plan for Kentucky – We promise.

Keynote Speaker: Adewale Troutman, MD, MPH, CPH

Utilization of the County Health Rankings

As public health professionals, we must help community leaders see that where we live, learn, work, and play influences how healthy we are and how long we live. We must demonstrate that individual health behaviors affect health status, but that a community’s education and jobs, quality of health care, and environment are also significant factors. How can we most effectively use the County Health Rankings to demonstrate this? Kate Konkle provides strategic guidance to communities that want to put the County Health Rankings into action for community health improvement. She is a Community Engagement Specialist with the University of Wisconsin Population Health Institute, which collaborated with the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation on the County Health Rankings & Roadmaps project. She has a background in supporting local health departments with community health improvement planning, and in helping them to prepare for accreditation using assessment and quality improvement.

Adewale Troutman, MD, MPH, MA, CPH
APHA President 2013

Social justice...human rights...community activism...health equity. All are part of Dr. Troutman’s life work, and his commitment. He has over 40 years of dedication through action to the principles of universal freedoms and the elimination of racism, injustice and oppression.

Dr. Troutman has worked in clinical emergency medicine and hospital administration. His academic and public health practice has included a tenure in our state as U of L professor while serving as the Louisville-Jefferson Co. Public Health Director. His experience includes consultancies and other public health work across the globe. His commitment to justice has evolved into nationally recognized efforts to create health equity and the supremacy of the social determinants of health. Accomplishments include the first Center for Health Equity at a local health department and the Mayor’s Healthy Hometown Movement. He is also credited with the passage of one of the strongest anti-smoking ordinances in the country.

D.G. Mawn, MA, JD
Cultural Intuitiveness™ (CI) is not so much about a particular issue than about how we connect with the world around us - and in us. To be culturally intuitive is to appreciate how your words, attitude and behavior can minimize offense to others by being truthful and transparent to whom you are. This manner invites trust, allowing others to hear you, and encourages you to accept what you hear from others. What emerges in our conversations is influenced by our context. If we practice Cultural Intuitiveness, we may continue to live in balance while evolving to whom we are meant to be.

D.G. Mawn is an attorney licensed in Illinois and Kentucky. An experienced mediator, he co-developed the Cultural Intuitiveness™ process and now serves as CEO of Intuitive Synergies. In partnership with Community Systems Investments International, he provides consultation and coaching to public and private community-based organizations. The CI model helps individuals to work together seamlessly to meet their organization’s immediate objectives as well as their long term goals, vision and strategy. When organizations adopt empathetic practices to appreciate and strengthen the culture and systems of the communities they serve, they achieve measurable and sustainable positive outcomes.

8. Cultural Intuitiveness™: Moving Forward by Leveraging Your Power
Room: Whitley
Let’s get interactive and explore the five Cs (Connectors, Contemplation, Communication, Context and Continuation) as strategic practices for strengthening essential relationships.
D.G. Mawn has developed a framework for cultural competency that has influenced practices in Florida and Illinois to strengthen and stabilize their relationships, decrease marginalization, and increase connectedness to a shared vision. By being more supportive of each others’ missions and purposes, we can unlock leadership potential across the organization and eliminate some of the roadblocks to continuous quality improvement.
Facilitator: Louan Martin

Learn about emerging models, new opportunities for improving children’s health through schools, considerations for funding models in Kentucky, and how other states are managing. Eva Stone is an APRN and School Health Coordinator for the Boyle and Lincoln County Schools
Facilitators: Eva Stone, Section Chair
KHIE is vital when time is critical.

When Dr. Philip Bernard has a severely injured child transferred to his care, chances are the parents are still in route. How does he quickly obtain crucial medical information about this child? The answer is the Kentucky Health Information Exchange. "Often, we can find out if the child's immunizations are up to date, if he or she has any known drug allergies, who is the primary care physician, and the last time the child was on antibiotics," says Bernard. Knowing this kind of information can make all the difference when he's trying to save a child's life. It could make a huge difference for your patients, too.

MISSION
The primary mission of KAPHTC is to expand partnerships and critical linkages among state and local practice, academic partners in the Commonwealth of Kentucky, and the Central Appalachian region to provide improved access to education and training for the current and future public health workforce.

GOALS
• Strengthen local and state academic and practice partners’ capacity for public health workforce education and training, including the specific focus on the needs of Appalachia.
• Develop and implement competency-based education programs and learning products to strengthen workforce competency and capacity to perform essential public health services.
• Provide technical assistance and share expertise and resources.

PRIMARY ACTIVITIES
• Develop and Facilitate Accreditation Related Activities or Trainings, with Specific Emphasis on Strategic Planning, CHAs & CHIPS
• Conduct Workforce Training Needs Assessment
• Develop and Design Curriculum
• Create Learning Products and Programs
• Create Action Learning Mentoring and Community Projects
• Create Field Placement Opportunities for Public Health Students in Medically Underserved Areas
